Proceedings of the two Houses. The House of Representatives is still paralized by a want of "generous confidence" of the members in each other. Some members are afraid to act upon one bill, lest others should take advantage of them, and some are suspicious upon another bill. The California bill is supposed to be calculated to benefit the North. The passage of the territorial bills without the Wilmot Provise operates for the South. The passage of the Texas bill meets friends or opponents in both quarters. The admission of California and the adjustment of the Texas boundary are said to be more favorite measures with the dministration than the passage of the territorial bills. any system of measures.

This want of mutual confidence was seen in the move-ments of yesterday. No day could be fixed on for the onsideration of eather measure, lest it might operate to the advantage of one section more than another. Yesterday two motions were made to fix the order of proceeding, but both were rejected-the first by Mr

Brown, of Indiana, who moved to take up the New Mexieo bill first; then the boundary Texas bill; third, the California bill; and last, the Utah bill. But most of the southern members were afraid lest the Wilmot Proviso should be tacked to the territorial bill, and thus passed upon them before any other measure was adopted. Mr. Ashmun then moved another order of proceeding viz: Utah, Texas, California, and New Mexico. But as the Utah bill required an appropriation of money, which would require the bill to be sent to the Committee of the Whole, and thus cause some delay, which might throw the Utah bill in the rear of Texas and California, this arrangement was objected to and voted down.

This is a strange and embarrassing position of public affairs. We refer to it with pain, and almost with shame. Has it, indeed, come to this, that men of honor cannot be trusted with the faithful administration of the public jecting other members to a breach of faith? It is impossible that this state of things can long continue. We

Rural Life.

This primeval employment of man is the most healthful of all occupations; healthful for the body, the mind, and the soul. What other pursuits by which men obtain honest bread afford such vigorous training for the physical power, such various and extensive ranges of mental exercises? And where may the moral nature of man be preserved unsullied from vice, and grow and expand more than in the rural scenes beneath the purest air of Heaven!

The farmer's life is not to scratch with the penrap, rap, with the hammer-nor an everlasting unpacking and repacking of another's labor. He walks forth under the open sky, his broad acres spread out beneath his feet; the blue concave, sunlit and starlit, or shrouded in clouds, is still above him. Health claims him as her favorite child, and the glorious sun loves to kiss a cheek that is not ashamed to wear the ruddy imprint of such affection. Nature's own inimitable babbling brooks, birds, breeze, or rustling foliage, enter his ear on their glad mission to his heart. He listens to instructive voices, continually speaking from the universe around him. His eyes gather truth from pages of wisdom every where open before him. Each day, each month, season after season, year after year, these teachings are given to him, infinite in variety and endless in extent.
